

In the Abstract:

A device for the administration of basic active agents, ~~in particular~~ such as nicotine, to the human or animal body. ~~by means of~~ The active agents are administered by inhalation. The device comprises a first preparation containing a nicotine base or/and a further basic active agent and, ~~furthermore~~, a second or further preparations[.]. ~~whereby at~~ At least one preparation contains at least one volatile acid suitable for inhalation.